PULSIFY ICP - FULL AVATAR + 28-POINT DEEP DIVE

THE AVATAR: "Ambitious Stalled Marcus"

AVATAR PROFILE

Name: Marcus (represents the archetype)
Age: 23 years old
Location: Lives with roommates or parents
Business: Coaching/consulting in a specific niche (trading, e-commerce, copywriting, high-ticket sales, brand scaling, fitness, dating, etc.)
Time in Business: 1–2 years
Current Revenue: $10K–$35K/month (average from his industry work), with rare peaks of $50K–$80K from launches
Monthly Profit: $6K–$21K (40–60% margins) in average months
Saved Capital: $3K–$12K (fluctuates)

Marcus is 23 years old and runs a coaching business in his niche. He's been at this for about 18 months. He quit his retail/sales job after 8 months because he "couldn't take orders from someone dumber than him" and saw other people his age making $50K+ months online. He thought, "If they can do it, I definitely can."

And for a while, he was right.

His first cohort sold well. He launched to his warm audience—people who had been watching his content for 6–9 months, who knew him, liked him, and trusted him. He filled 8–12 seats at $2,500–$5,000 each and made $28,000–$45,000 in 2 weeks. He felt invincible. He posted on his Instagram story: "Just did $35K in my first launch. This is only the beginning." His friends, family, doubters—they all saw it. He felt like he'd finally proven everyone wrong.

But the second launch? Only 2–3 seats filled. $6,000–$9,000. The third launch? Maybe 3–4 seats. $10,000–$15,000.

Now he's realized the brutal truth: He drained his old fans. The well is dry.

These days, Marcus pulls $10K–$30K/month from his industry work (1-on-1 clients, small cohorts, some consulting). It's okay-ish. He's not broke. But it's nowhere near the $100K–$200K+/month he thought he'd be doing by now. And the inconsistency is killing him. Some months he spikes to $40K–$50K if he really grinds and closes a few high-ticket clients. Rare months he'll hit $60K–$80K from a launch that actually works. But most months? $15K–$25K. And it's feast and famine. Mostly famine.

The problem is he can't predict it. He doesn't know which launch will work or which month will be good. And he's starting to panic because he knows he needs a system. He knows he needs YouTube. He knows there are operators out there who can help him scale to $100K–$200K+/month predictably.

Deep down, he KNOWS good people exist. He's smart enough to understand that real operators charge $5K–$10K+ for their services and that it requires merciless amounts of work on his end. He knows that with the right operator behind him—someone who systemizes everything, plans it out, leverages AI, and understands the algorithm—he can actually get it done.

But on the surface, he doesn't believe in it.

Why? Because he's been burned. And because his DMs are flooded with absolute trash.

THE DM PROBLEM (Why Marcus Doesn't Trust Operators)

Marcus gets 5–10 DMs per week from "agencies" and "operators" promising him the world:

"Hey bro, I can get you to $50K–$100K/month in 90 days guaranteed. I've helped 10+ coaches scale using my proven YouTube system. Interested?"

Most of these people are newbies. They just learned the business model 3 months ago. They have zero case studies, or fake ones. They promise crazy guarantees they can't fulfill, or they offer no guarantee at all and just want an upfront $3K–$5K payment.

Marcus has been burned twice:

1. Paid $2,000 to a "YouTube growth agency" that promised him "10K+ subscribers in 90 days and qualified leads flowing in." They optimized for views. He got 50K views on one video. Zero sales calls. When he asked for a refund, they ghosted.
2. Paid $1,500 to a "funnel expert" who promised a "high-converting VSL funnel that would print money." The funnel converted at 0%. When Marcus asked for help fixing it, the guy said, "You just need better traffic bro" and disappeared.

Now Marcus is jaded. His guard is up. He kicks the can down the road and treats hiring someone as a last resort. He'd rather try to figure it out himself (even though he's been stuck for months) than risk wasting another $3K–$5K on a scammer.

But deep down? He knows he can't do this alone. He knows YouTube is the answer. He knows there are real operators out there. He just doesn't know how to tell the difference between the newbies promising the world and the real ones who can actually deliver.

WHAT MARCUS NEEDS TO SEE (To Believe You're Different)

Marcus has been DM'd by 50+ "operators" in the past 6 months. Most are trash. But he knows crazy good people COULD be DMing him—people like you.

The difference is: You have a fully built-out YouTube channel talking about specific problems he's never seen anyone else talk about.

When Marcus gets a DM from you, he's skeptical at first. But then he clicks your profile and sees:

- 20–40 YouTube videos on topics like:
    - "Why Your Second Launch Failed (And How to Fix It)"
    - "You Only Need 1,000 Subscribers to Make $100K+/Month (Micro-Niche Strategy)"
    - "Profile Funnels: The System Top Coaches Use to Convert Cold Traffic"
    - "Why Copying Hormozi's Thumbnails Won't Work for You (Authority vs. Format)"

Marcus watches 2–3 of your videos. And he thinks, "Holy shit. This guy actually knows what he's talking about. He's not just some newbie promising $50K/month. He's talking about the REAL problems I'm dealing with—launches plateauing, YouTube not converting, warm audience drained."

That's when his guard starts to come down.

Then he sees your case studies. Real clients. Real revenue screenshots. Real before-and-after stories. Not fake Fiverr testimonials. Not "I helped my friend make $10K" bullshit. Real proof.

And that's when he books a call.

ON THE SALES CALL (Marcus's Guard Is Still Up)

Even when Marcus gets on a call with you, his guard is up. He's cautious. He's been burned before. He's heard the promises. He's seen the fake guarantees.

Here's what's running through his head on the call:

- "Is this guy legit, or is he just another smooth talker?"
- "How much is this going to cost? If he says $5K–$10K, is it actually worth it?"
- "What if I pay him and it doesn't work? I can't afford to lose another $5K."
- "How much work is this going to require from me? I'm already burnt out."
- "Is he going to actually build this for me, or is he just going to 'teach me' and leave me to figure it out?"

This is why your positioning on YouTube is everything. By the time Marcus gets on the call, he's already watched 3–5 of your videos. He already knows you're not a newbie. He already sees you understand his exact problems. He's pre-sold on you before the call even starts.

On the call, you don't need to "convince" him. You just need to:

1. Show him the system (Profile Funnel + YouTube Micro-Niche + Tracking + Ads)
2. Explain the work required (2 videos/week, consistent posting, 30–90 days to build infrastructure)
3. Show him proof (case studies, revenue screenshots, real clients)
4. Make the investment clear ($5K+ or 25% rev share, no fake guarantees, just real work = real results)

Marcus knows deep down that this is going to require merciless work on his end. But he also knows that with the right operator behind him—someone who systemizes everything, plans it out, sources everything with AI, and knows how to tackle the algorithm—he can get it done.

THE LAUNCH PLATEAU (Marcus's Current Situation)

Marcus's launch pattern looks like this:

Launch 1 (First Cohort): Sold 8–12 seats at $2,500–$5,000 each. Made $28,000–$45,000. Felt like a god.

Launch 2: Sold 2–3 seats. Made $6,000–$9,000. Thought, "Okay, maybe it was just bad timing. I'll do better next time."

Launch 3: Sold 3–4 seats. Made $10,000–$15,000. Realized, "Oh shit. My warm audience is tapped out. Everyone who was going to buy already bought. I need NEW people."

Now: He's stuck. He knows he can't just keep launching to the same 5,000–10,000 followers on Instagram. He needs cold traffic. He needs YouTube. He needs a system that brings in new qualified leads every week so his launches don't dry up.

That's where you come in.

WHAT MARCUS KNOWS (But Doesn't Fully Believe Yet)

Marcus is smart. He's been in the game for 18 months. He's made money. He's failed. He's learned. Here's what he knows deep down, even if he doesn't fully believe it yet:

1. Good operators exist—they're just hard to find, and most people DMing him are trash.
2. Good service costs $5K–$10K minimum—anyone charging $1,500 is either a newbie or a scammer.
3. YouTube is the key to scaling—but he doesn't know how to make it work for high-ticket (thinks it only works for low-ticket/ads).
4. He needs a system—content alone isn't enough. He needs Profile Funnel + YouTube + Tracking + Ads.
5. This is going to require merciless work—2 videos/week, consistent posting, 30–90 days of building before he sees results.
6. With the right operator, he can actually do it—he just needs someone who systemizes everything, holds him accountable, and has proof.

The problem is he's been promised the world by newbies so many times that he doesn't believe it anymore. He's skeptical. His guard is up. He kicks the can down the road and treats hiring someone as a last resort.

But when he sees your YouTube channel—20–40 videos talking about the exact problems he's facing, problems no one else is talking about—that's when his belief starts to shift.

HOW YOU SEPARATE YOURSELF (Standing Out Is Easy When Everyone Else Is Trash)

Marcus has been DM'd by 50+ "operators" in the past 6 months. Here's what they all sound like:

"Hey bro! I help coaches like you scale to $50K–$100K/month using YouTube and IG. I've worked with 10+ clients. Interested?"

No proof. No authority. No YouTube channel. Just a promise and a pitch.

You're different because:

1. You have a fully built-out YouTube channel with 20–40 videos talking about specific problems Marcus is facing (launch plateaus, YouTube not converting, Profile Funnels, micro-niche strategy, etc.).
2. You have real case studies—before/after revenue screenshots, client testimonials, real proof (not Fiverr fake shit).
3. You're not promising $50K–$100K/month in 90 days—you're being real: "This takes 30–90 days to build the infrastructure, 2 videos/week for 6–12 months, and merciless work on your end. But if you execute, you'll hit $100K–$200K+/month predictably."
4. You're not a newbie—your YouTube channel proves you've been in the game, you understand the nuances, you know what works and what doesn't.
5. You reach out via IG DM, but your positioning is all on YouTube—when Marcus clicks your profile, he sees your YouTube channel and thinks, "This guy is legit. He's not just some random DM spammer."

Standing out is easy when everyone else is fundamentally trash.

28-POINT DEEP DIVE (UPDATED WITH NEW CONTEXT)

1. TRAUMA

- Burned by agencies: Spent $2K on a YouTube growth agency that got views but zero sales. Spent $1,500 on a "funnel expert" who built a 0% converting funnel and ghosted.
- Launch plateau: First cohort sold 8–12 seats ($28K–$45K). Second launch sold 2–3 seats ($6K–$9K). Third launch sold 3–4 seats ($10K–$15K). Realized his warm audience is tapped out.
- DM'd by trash operators: Gets 5–10 DMs/week from newbies promising $50K+/month with fake guarantees or no proof. Makes him jaded and skeptical of everyone.
- Family/friend doubt: Parents told him quitting his job was a mistake. Friends laughed. Even after his first $35K launch, some still think he's in a pyramid scheme.
- Competitor resentment: Watches people with worse skills make $200K–$500K/month consistently while he's stuck doing $15K–$30K most months.
- Wasted money on courses: Spent $1,000+ on courses that delivered nothing.
- Had to borrow money: Had a $8K month once and had to borrow $1,500 from parents to cover rent. The shame still haunts him.

---

2. OBSTACLES/PROBLEMS

- Launch plateau: First cohort sold well (drained warm audience). Now launches get 2–4 seats max. Needs cold traffic system.
- Warm audience tapped out: Everyone who was going to buy already bought. Needs NEW people but doesn't have a system to bring them in.
- Stuck at $10K–$30K/month from industry work: Decent, but nowhere near the $100K–$200K+/month he wants.
- Feast and famine: Some months $40K–$50K, most months $15K–$25K. Can't predict revenue.
- No consistent sales flow: Scrambling every month hoping clients show up.
- Content doesn't convert anymore: Posts get engagement but no qualified leads.
- Kills momentum constantly: Posts 10 days when desperate, ghosts 2–3 weeks when burnt out.
- Copies leaders without understanding why: Doesn't realize authority beats format.
- Doesn't see YouTube as long-term asset: Tried 5 videos, got 500 views, quit. Thinks it doesn't work for high-ticket.
- No clear positioning: Bootleg brand, no unique micro-niche.
- Been burned by operators: Paid $2K and $1,500 to trash agencies. Now skeptical of everyone.
- Kicks the can down the road: Knows he needs help but treats hiring someone as a last resort because he doesn't trust anyone.
- Doesn't see the value in $5K–$10K investment yet: Knows good service costs that much but hasn't seen proof it's worth it.
- Fucked sleep schedule, no routine: Some nights up until 3 AM, other nights crashes at 9 PM. No consistency.

---

3. AGE

21–26 years old (sweet spot: 22–24)

- Young, hungry, impatient
- Doesn't have the perspective to understand 3–4 years of execution is normal
- Thinks 12–18 months is "a long time."
- Influenced by FOMO and social media flexes
- Chaotic lifestyle, fucked sleep schedule

---

4. DOUBTS

- "Am I actually good, or did I just get lucky with my first launch?"
- "What if $20K–$30K/month is my ceiling?"
- "What if I invest $5K–$10K in an operator and it doesn't work again?"
- "How do I know who's legit and who's a scammer? Everyone in my DMs sounds the same."
- "What if YouTube doesn't work for high-ticket and I waste 6 months posting for nothing?"
- "Should I just lower my price to $1,500 to get more volume?"
- "Am I delusional for thinking I can scale to $200K+/month?"
- "What if I have to go back to a 9–5 and admit I failed?"

---

5. GOALS

- Hit $100K–$200K+/month consistently (not just one lucky launch)
- Get 10–20 qualified inbound sales calls per month from cold traffic
- End launch plateaus—wants a system that brings in new people every week
- Build YouTube channel that converts (not just views, but actual high-ticket sales)
- Get out of feast-and-famine cycles—wants predictable revenue
- Build a team (editor, VA, setter) and stay profitable
- Live the aspirational lifestyle (Dubai, supercar, F1, penthouse)
- Prove doubters wrong
- Move out of parents'/roommates' place
- Have $50K+ saved so he feels secure

---

6. FEARS

- Fear of staying stuck at $20K–$30K/month while competitors scale to $200K–$500K+
- Fear of wasting another $5K–$10K on a trash operator who doesn't deliver
- Fear of launch plateaus continuing—stuck selling 2–3 seats per launch forever
- Fear of running out of capital before he figures it out
- Fear of burning out completely and quitting
- Fear his girlfriend will leave him because he's broke and stressed
- Fear of being 27 and still stuck while everyone else scaled
- Fear of being exposed as a fraud—a bootleg version of the real leaders

---

7. INSECURITIES

- Feels like a bootleg version of top coaches
- Worried his content isn't good enough
- Compares himself constantly to competitors doing $200K–$500K/month
- Insecure about small following (5K–10K followers)
- Doubts his ability to actually execute on a system—worried he'll pay $5K–$10K and then not do the work
- Feels like an imposter posting authority content when he's doing $20K months
- Insecure about lifestyle—still lives with roommates/parents
- Ashamed of fucked sleep schedule and lack of discipline

---

8. VICES/ADDICTIONS

- Obsessively scrolls IG/YouTube 3–5 hours/day
- Checks Stripe 15+ times/day hoping for sales
- Jumps from strategy to strategy (shiny object syndrome)
- Watches "day in the life" vlogs instead of working
- Drinks 3–5 coffees/day to fight chaotic sleep
- Works late planning instead of executing
- Doom-scrolls until 2–4 AM instead of sleeping
- Stress-eats during famine months
- Avoids bank account when he knows it's low

---

9. THINKS ABOUT (DAILY MENTAL LOOPS)

- "How do I get more sales this month? I need at least $15K–$20K or I'm stressed."
- "Why is [competitor] making $300K/month consistently when I can barely hit $30K?"
- "What's the ONE thing I'm missing?"
- "Should I hire someone? But what if they're trash like the last two?"
- "How do I know who's legit? Everyone in my DMs sounds the same."
- "What if I invest $5K–$10K and it doesn't work?"
- "When is this going to get easier?"
- "Am I one system away or am I delusional?"
- "What will my parents say if I fail?"

---

10. BELIEFS

- Believes skill should = success (has skill, so why isn't he winning bigger?)
- Believes in high-ticket over low-ticket
- Believes systems are the key but doesn't know how to build them
- Deep down believes good operators exist—just hard to find
- Surface-level doesn't trust anyone because he's been burned
- Believes YouTube is the future but doesn't know how to make it work for high-ticket
- Believes good service costs $5K–$10K minimum but doesn't see the value yet
- Knows this will require merciless work on his end but with the right operator he can do it
- Struggles with patience—wants results in 12 months, not 3–4 years

---

11. IDENTITY

- Sees himself as a coach/consultant, not content creator
- Identifies as ambitious, hungry
- Wants to be THE authority in his niche
- Sees himself as self-made
- Identity tied to proving doubters wrong
- Aspires to be next top coach in his vertical

---

12. EMOTIONAL PATTERNS

- High highs (rare) when he closes big sale or has $50K month
- Crushing lows (dominant) when launch flops or he does $12K month
- Manic energy when desperate—posts obsessively
- Burns out fast—crashes after 2 weeks
- Gets defensive when questioned
- Frustration spikes seeing competitors win
- Oscillates between confidence and deep self-doubt

---

13. RESENTMENTS

- Resents coaches making $200K–$500K/month consistently
- Resents trash operators flooding his DMs with fake promises
- Resents agencies that ghosted him after taking his money
- Resents people who consume free content but never buy
- Resents the algorithm for not giving him a fair shot
- Resents his parents for doubting him

---

14. ROLE MODELS

Niche-Specific Leaders:

- Top coaches in his vertical making $200K–$500K+/month consistently
- People with proven YouTube systems (not just views, but actual revenue from YouTube)

General:

- Anyone making $200K+/month consistently and living the lifestyle

---

15. GUILTS/SHAMES

- Ashamed he's not further along after 18 months
- Guilty for borrowing money from parents
- Shame around launch plateaus—first one crushed it, now he can barely fill 3 seats
- Ashamed he's a bootleg instead of building something original
- Guilty for fucked sleep schedule and lack of discipline
- Shame around still living with roommates/parents

---

16. MEDIA

- YouTube (watches top coaches, studies content, looking for answers)
- Instagram (scrolls competitors, studies their strategies)
- Twitter/X (follows entrepreneurs)
- TikTok (scrolls trends)

---

17. PLATFORMS

- Primary: Instagram (posts when motivated, ghosts when not)
- Secondary: YouTube (tried 5 videos, quit, wants to crack it but doesn't know how)
- Experimental: TikTok

---

18. ROUTINES/HABITS

- Wakes up: 6 AM to 12 PM (no consistency)
- First thing: Checks Stripe, IG, YouTube
- Mornings: Sometimes productive, sometimes scrolls
- Afternoons: Client work, sales calls (if any)
- Evenings: Scrolls, watches YouTube, plans (doesn't execute)
- Sleep: 4–7 hours, fucked schedule
- Gyms: 2 weeks on, 4 weeks off
- Pattern: Posts 10 days desperate, ghosts 2–3 weeks, repeat

---

19. FAMILY/RELATIONSHIPS

- Lives with roommates or parents
- Has girlfriend (worried, losing patience)
- Family skeptical
- Feels pressure to prove them wrong
- Guilt for not being present

---

20. PURCHASES

- Business: $2K–$5K/year on courses, tools
- Small flexes: $200 hoodie to feel successful
- Will invest $5K–$10K if ROI is clear and operator has proof
- Skeptical—been burned twice

---

21. HEALTH

- Fucked sleep schedule
- Stressed constantly
- Gyms inconsistently
- Eats like shit when stressed
- Too much coffee
- Anxiety, sometimes depressive

---

22. TRAITS

- Ambitious, impatient, inconsistent
- Skeptical, cautious, guard up
- Defensive, prideful
- Loyal once trust is earned

---

23. VALUES

- Results over excuses
- High-integrity
- Proving doubters wrong
- Real work = real results (no fake guarantees)

---

24. EDUCATION

- Some college or dropped out
- Self-taught
- Values practical over theory

---

25. SOCIAL LIFE

- Limited
- Friends are mostly entrepreneurs
- Feels isolated

---

26. HOBBIES

- Used to have them, business consumed everything
- Gyms inconsistently
- Wants to travel "once I make it"

---

27. WORK EXPERIENCE

- Had 9–5 for 6–12 months, hated it, quit
- Now 18 months into coaching/consulting
- Pulls $10K–$30K/month from industry work
- First launch crushed it, now stuck at 2–4 seats per launch

---

28. FINANCES

- Average revenue: $15K–$30K/month from industry work
- Peak months (rare): $50K–$80K from good launches
- Famine months: $10K–$15K
- Profit margins: 40–60%
- Saved capital: $3K–$12K (fluctuates)
- Willing to invest: $5K–$10K or 25% rev share if he sees proof and trusts the operator
- Wants: $100K–$200K+/month consistently to end launch plateaus and feast-and-famine cycles

---

THE KEY DIFFERENTIATOR: YOUR YOUTUBE CHANNEL

Marcus has been DM'd by 50+ operators in 6 months. Most are trash. But when he gets a DM from you and clicks your profile, he sees:

- 20–40 YouTube videos talking about problems he's never seen anyone else talk about
- Real case studies with proof
- No fake guarantees—just real: "This takes 30–90 days to build, 2 videos/week, merciless work. But if you execute, you hit $100K–$200K+/month predictably."

That's when his guard comes down and he books a call.